Domestic Dispute Leaves Pleasanton Man Hospitalized

The City of Pleasanton Police Department arrested an adult female suspected of stabbing her husband amid a domestic dispute. This isolated case of domestic violence is actively under investigation, and the police department extends its support to the affected family during this challenging period. At approximately 12:30 a.m. on Monday, May 6, 2024, Pleasanton Police Department received a call from a woman reporting she stabbed her husband during an altercation. Officers responded to the reported apartment complex located in the 4900 block of Owens Drive, where they immediately administered aid to the male victim. He was transported to a local trauma center, where he presently remains in critical condition. The female suspect was arrested and later booked into Santa Rita Jail on charges of attempted murder, assault with a deadly weapon, and felony domestic violence.

Due to the ongoing investigation and confidentiality laws governing domestic violence cases, the Pleasanton Police Department will not be releasing the names of the involved individuals.
